Second Language Education pedagogy, culture and methodology in Spain (SLE in Spain)

Learning Outcome

- SAF Scholars will be able to articulate the differences in second language education between China and Spain
- SAF Scholars will be able to demonstrate knowledge of second language education pedagogy tools and teaching methodologies through classroom observation and the delivery of their own lesson
- SAF Scholars will construct a lesson plan using both Chinese and Spanish teaching methodologies for second language education
- SAF Scholars will be able to analyze key differences in Chinese and Spanish teaching methodologies and bring different methods back to China they would like to use in their own classroom

Course Description:

This unit introduces the fundamental teaching methodologies, pedagogy tools and educational culture in Spain, with a focus on Barcelona and Catalonia. Topics, which are delivered in modules, include (1) pedagogy tools used across Spanish and Catalonia classrooms in second language education courses; (2) The educational culture of Spain and how the educational system works within different regions; and (3) classroom observation in local primary and secondary classrooms to provide real analytical comparison between China and Spain. While introducing students to Spanish second language teaching methodologies, emphasis is mainly placed on explaining the general second language educational system in Spain and classroom observation of real methodologies and pedagogy tools. Summative assessments are held throughout the unit to help students adopt a learning strategy that facilitates long-term understanding and mastery of material.

- Course will consist of five lectures to complement and enhance the classroom observation component of the program included in the field studies. All lectures will occur at the University of Barcelona and taught by a University of Barcelona professor to be confirmed closer to program date.
